

Ferhat KARA, graduated from Istanbul Technical University as a Metallurgical Engineer in 1988. He had his MSc degree in Engineering Ceramics from University of Leeds/UK in 1990. He received his PhD degree from University of Cambridge/UK in 1994. Since then, he has been working as a lecturer in the Department of Materials Science and Engineering of Anadolu University/Turkey. He also served as the director of the Ceramic Research Centre, university-industry joint research centre founded by Anadolu University and Turkish ceramic manufacturing companies between 1998-2010.